Student Course Record

This binder is the master organizational index for the AU-ESET 301 personal independent-study program. Use the documents below the same way you would use a university course site: the syllabus controls the course, the gradebook records performance, the lab manual controls submissions, and the learning resource manual provides approved instructional resources.

Student	William A. Green IV
Course	AU-ESET 301 - Embedded Systems + CETa Career Transition
Section	Section 001
Term	Fall 2026 - Spring 2027
Program School	School of Engineering and Applied Technology
Department	Department of Applied Electronics and Embedded Technology
Enrollment Status	Active - Independent Professional Development

Official Course Documents

01. Syllabus & Student Handbook

Course policies, grading, deadlines, mastery gates, attendance and capstone requirements.

02. Learning Resource Manual

Approved written and video resources for each course competency.

03. Assignment & Lab Manual

Submission forms, lab-report templates, root-cause reports, design reviews and office-hours forms.

04. Student Gradebook & Dashboard

Grades, attendance, weekly status, milestone gates and course progress.

05. CETa Knowledge-Only Audio Course Reader

Audio-friendly textbook extraction for supplemental listening.

06. Certificate of Course Completion

Personal course-completion record issued only after all completion requirements are satisfied.

Academic Use Protocol

- Treat scheduled study blocks as class meetings, but use mastery evidence rather than elapsed time to determine completion.
- Use the Gradebook every week. Enter actual scores, actual hours, evidence links and repair notes.

- Submit labs using the Assignment & Lab Manual instead of keeping informal notes only.
 - Use office hours when a concept remains unclear after a serious attempt. Bring a specific question, your attempt, and evidence.
 - Do not issue yourself the completion certificate until the final grade is C or better and all safety/mastery gates are Green.
 - The Week 30 bridge-job application green-light remains the career finish line; optional topics do not silently extend the course.

Institutional Note

Alfred University is a fictional personal learning environment created to make this independent study plan feel structured and school-like. It is not an accredited institution and its documents are not transcripts, diplomas, college credit, or professional certifications.
